

COVID-19 IMPACT ASSESSMENT

Ulula is a software and analytics platform that equips organizations with digital tools to monitor and manage social risk and create more responsible supply chains

Actionable insights to protect operations across the supply chain

COVID-19 is disrupting global supply chains and creating a direct threat to business.

- How is the coronavirus affecting your workforce?
- How can you better respond to workers' needs to increase staff morale and productivity?
- How are procurement practices adapting to support factories during the epidemic?
- How is your factory comparing to the rest of your industry?

Ulula's worker engagement technology provides a quick and cost-effective tool to help you anticipate some of the potential labor and operational risks associated with COVID-19.

Building on its experience engaging workers across the world, Ulula has developed two complementary assessments to help your business keep the pulse of your workers and increase your resilience.

Worker Impact Assessment

- Understand the impact of the coronavirus on health and safety, mental health, overtime and wages
- Provide insights into practical steps to respond to workers' needs
- Measure the impact of the coronavirus on worker satisfaction, turnover and absenteeism
- Assess labor shortages and impact on productivity

Management Assessment

- Assess the impact of the crisis on operations - labor, productivity, orders
- Compare impact with your peers
- Get insights to better engage buyers
- Predict and prepare return to full operational capacity

Get results fast in three steps

1 Onboard

Suppliers register for the assessment(s) and receive onboarding materials to publicize survey to workforce
Day 1-2

2 Assess

Workers access the assessment by scanning the facilities designated QR code with their phone. Managers take online survey. Day 3-7

3 Report

Client receives report. Managers can share with key decision-makers to assess risk and determine next steps. Day 7-10
