

UL-AU Mark product certification for designers and specifiers

Trust matters more than ever

About you

- You make product selection choices every day and document these in your designs and specifications.
- You are responsible for producing designs and documentation that demonstrate compliance and meet regional standards and regulations.
- You recognise that regulations and expectations are evolving with a focus on improving documentation and compliance.
- You are starting to ask more questions about products and how their suitability is demonstrated now that this is under more scrutiny.
- You are frustrated by the inconsistent information you receive about products, making it difficult to be confident in product conformity.
- You need an independent, trusted source of product information you can trust to support your approval decisions.
- You want to know the product you select in your design meets regional standards and requirements.

UL-AU Mark Scheme — a dedicated UL Mark for Australia and New Zealand

The UL-AU Mark is a third-party product certification from the global safety science leader UL that helps product manufacturers gain local and international recognition. It is a solution that UL is accredited by JAS-ANZ¹ to deliver, bringing credibility to the market and helping you mitigate compliance risk.

Why choose the UL-AU Mark Scheme?

- The UL-AU Mark is specifically tailored for the Australia and New Zealand region, enabling the certification of products to local standards, test specification and installation and use requirements. A solution that UL is accredited by JAS-ANZ1 to deliver, bringing credibility to the market and helping you to mitigate compliance risk.
- Products bearing the UL-AU Mark have satisfied testing and ongoing production surveillance requirements, giving you confidence in their consistent compliance.
- UL-AU Marks that incorporate an optional specific QR code identifier offer a digital solution that connects physical products to certification information on UL's global Product iQ™ product certification directory.
- National regulators and approval authorities accept the UL-AU Mark as one of the most reliable forms of evidence of product suitability.
